

were placed at commanding positions in the galleries.

Officials were silent about the preparations but it was said at the capitol that word had gone out of some of the more militant suffragists to make a demonstration but it came to light. It was said that lawyers representing the women had made an examination of the precedents governing admission of the house and from that action officials suspected that something was being planned.

When the galleries had been filled with the usual visitors, the official parties came in. Mrs. Galt, the president's fiancee and her party took the executive gallery. Other reserved places were occupied by government officials and their wives. The diplomatic gallery was unusually well filled.

NEXT MOVE IN FIRE DEPARTMENT IS APPARENTLY UP TO COUNCIL

City Attorney hasn't given opinion yet but impression is that Klein's Dismissal Calls for Vote.

SHAKE-UP TAKES ON POLITICAL ASPECT

Burtless' Appointment Viewed With Disapproval by Citizens Who Object to Mixing Politics With Case.

Mayor Boatright having removed Fire Chief Jacob Klein from office and appointed former Chief A. C. Burtless his successor, and council having dismissed Driver W. J. Reed, who ran the truck that killed Little Owen Dorris, the question in the public mind now is, What will city council do in the matter of Klein?

There is a general impression that the ordinance under which the mayor acted provides that dismissed calls for concurrent action by council before it is effective. City Attorney Thomas N. Wilkerson said today that he was not prepared to give an opinion on that point until he had studied the ordinance.

Mr. Wilkerson is still suffering from the effects of injuries received in a recent automobile accident, and so far, he said today, he had not been able to give the attention to the subject that it required. He expected to settle the matter in his own mind in a day or so, and attend the next meeting of council armed with all the necessary opinions that might be called for.

What council will do when the chief's removal and Burtless' appointment is paid before it, is a matter for speculation. If rumors to be credited there will be stiff opposition on the ground that the mayor's move was so patently political as to remove from serious consideration any pretense that he was actuated by a sole desire to better the service.

Chief Burtless has been frankly identified with politics. He is an organization Republican, and is known as a man for whom Gilpinwater, Romero and other G. O. P. leaders have the most kindly and solicitous feelings, based on the fact that in political parties he is "all right."

Burtless was chief for six years. He was brought here from Toledo, Ohio, eleven years ago to take the place of the head of the department. He saw long service in the Toledo department, and came to Albuquerque with strong recommendations. One of them was from "Golden Rule" Jones, then Toledo's mayor.

Of recent years Burtless has been a deputy sheriff, acting as chief aide to Undersheriff Dick Lewis.

Interest in the removal today seemed to be divided between the act itself and the political aspect of it. In a good many quarters resentment was expressed over what was regarded as the needless injection of politics into the departmental situation. The opinion was expressed that the mayor's advisors had led him into a position that would weaken him seriously in his attempt to go before the people with the assertion that the departmental problem was approached with an eye single to the public good.

Klein's removal and Burtless' appointment have not yet been laid in any way before the council. Klein was dismissed by the mayor after council adjourned last night. The mayor waited for the fire committee to act, and when it failed to recommend Klein's removal the executive took the step upon his own shoulders.

The committee recommended Driver Reed's dismissal, making no reference whatever to Klein. Several days ago Mayor Boatright reached the conclusion that in recommending only Reed's removal the committee wouldn't go far enough, and he went to the meeting last night prepared to act himself with regard to Klein if the committee didn't.

Immediately after the meeting the mayor called Klein to his office and notified him that he was removed by executive action. With the formal notice of dismissal the mayor gave Klein a copy of a statement to council setting forth the mayor's reasons for the act. City Clerk Huber got a copy of the statement, which will be laid before council at its next session. Honorary Council of the City of Albuquerque, New Mexico.

Statement.—I hereby officially notify your honorable body, through the city clerk, that I have this day removed Jacob Klein from the position as chief of the fire department of the City of Albuquerque, New Mexico, and have so notified him in writing of his removal, that I have appointed Arthur C. Burtless of the city of Albuquerque, New Mexico, in the position as chief of the fire department of the city of Albuquerque.

Committee Report Adopted.

The report was signed by the entire committee. Alderman George D. Hammond, chairman; Alderman John Grunwald and Alderman W. S. Gilligan, Alderman W. E. Coen, former chairman of the fire committee moved the adoption of the report.

After dismissing Klein the mayor called in Burtless and formally appointed him as his appointment. The former chief accepted the billet and assumed charge of the department at once.

This morning chief Burtless was in full official array in the chief's office and dressed around to memorandum his new title, but he came about at his usual time, but he came about in citizens' clothes. The little red car was left at headquarters last night for Chief Burtless to use.

Klein announced that he would leave his personal belongings at headquarters for the time being. He is said to have taken the position that his full removal was not yet an accomplished fact, and that he would await action by council. He would make no statement for publication.

Chief Burtless made a detailed inspection of equipment and men at both stations this morning. One of the things he and the fire committee have to decide at the start is a competent successor to Reed as a driver of the highland truck.

To readers of the Evening Herald the departmental shake-up brought no surprise. For several days the Herald readers have been kept posted on the impending changes, despite strong efforts to keep the news buried beyond hope of excavation. No Herald reader was in ignorance of what was shaping up, including the political cast of the affair. For that reason the public received the news with considerably less of a thrill than would have stirred it under other circumstances, and this was in consequence of a natural tendency to consider the matter quietly and thoughtfully. It was ten days before the next meeting the aldermen and the executive will have plenty of opportunity to learn just how the people regard the shake-up as it stands, and what the public temper will be most likely to approve in the way of councilmanic action.

TONY SCORES AGAIN IN SERVICE FOR ALBUQUERQUE

Man Who Took Tax Out of Taxicab Service Buys Second Dodge Limousine From Cudabac Motor Company.

Tony Michelbach, the man who placed the tax out of taxicab service in Albuquerque, and whose automobile livery service is growing rapidly into the proportions of a big city line, has filed with the city clerks a motion that the speed of driving to and from fires be reduced; that it was common talk upon the streets that it would be only a matter of time when a more serious accident would occur if such driving was continued.

"That six months ago the said Chief Klein placed as driver at the highland station No. 2 of the fire department of the city, Walter J. Reed, that on the 19th day of November, A. D. 1915, at about 6 o'clock in the afternoon the fire alarm was sounded on South Edith street, city, and that Walter J. Reed, although his day off, took charge of the fire engine and attempted to drive it to the fire; that in the 700 block on South Edith street, city, he lost control of the engine and the engine ran through the fence and into the yard of Thomas M. Dorris, killing little Owen Dorris, son of Thomas M. Dorris; that at the hearing of the inquest to find out the cause of the death of little Owen Dorris, the said Walter J. Reed testified that when he was placed as driver of the engine at the highland station that he had not driven other machines before starting to drive this machine; that he had never driven a machine as an occupation before starting to drive for the city; neither had he ever owned a machine of his own which he had driven; and that he had never worked in an automobile garage prior to his employment as driver to the city; that he was driving for the city near five or six months and that at this time he did not know anything about the mechanical parts of a machine; that he had no idea of which he was driving when he started to drive it; that he had never been to the hospital or to his employer as driver to the city near five or six months and that he remembered distinctly that he was not more than that that he was unable to give a full amount of his whereabouts on the afternoon of the 19th day of November, A. D. 1915, on which the killing of little Owen Dorris occurred.

That at the investigation of the fire committee after the aforementioned inquest had taken place, Chief Klein stated that he put new men on the highland station and left the instructions to the captain to see that the new men became proficient and that he, the chief, expected that the captain did so but that he never investigated himself to find out whether or not the captain had done so.

"Gentlemen of the city council: In view of my knowledge as mayor, of the foregoing facts, I feel that Jacob Klein is inefficient and an unsafe man to be chief of the fire department of the city of Albuquerque, and I respectfully ask the honorable city council to approve and confirm my actions in the matter of the removal of Jacob Klein from the head of the fire department as chief and the appointment of Arthur C. Burtless to fill that place as chief of the fire department of the city of Albuquerque.

Fire Committee's Report.

The fire committee's report, reading to the removal of Driver Reed, follows:

"To the honorable mayor and city council of the City of Albuquerque, N. M.: We, the members of the fire committee of your body, wish to submit the following report:

"We have examined the accident in the highland engine which resulted in the killing of one Owen Dorris on November 19, 1915, and would refer to you the record of the coroner's investigation and report.

"We find that upon investigation that there are some charges which we believe are inaccurate for the best interests of the department and the welfare of the city. Among these is the admissibility of removing from the department of W. J. Reed, which we recommend. And we believe the running time of the fire apparatus should be limited to twenty-five miles per hour to go to fire and fifteen miles in returning, as so recommended."

Committee Report Adopted.

The report was signed by the entire committee. Alderman George D. Hammond, chairman; Alderman John Grunwald and Alderman W. S. Gilligan, Alderman W. E. Coen, former chairman of the fire committee moved the adoption of the report.

After dismissing Klein the mayor called in Burtless and formally appointed him as his appointment. The former chief accepted the billet and assumed charge of the department at once.

JOHN LEE CLARKE'S BIG CURIO STORE

Central Avenue near First St.

Nothing else can so completely endear us to the present and the future as the expected arrival of a baby. In the meantime, the safety of the mother is of great importance. There is a splendid external remedy known as "Mother's Friend" which effects a wonderful improvement in the condition of the expectant mother. The remedy is painless, stretches without undue pain, makes the period one of pleasant anticipation, and gives a sense of apprehension. In a series of splendid letters all over the country mothers tell of the great help "Mother's Friend" was to them. Even grandmothers who have never been mothers themselves, have written to tell of the great help "Mother's Friend" has been to their daughters.
